This group exhibition features recent works by Dickinson College studio art faculty members Todd Arsenault, Andrew Bale, Anthony Cervino, Ward Davenny, and Barbara Diduk.
“These images are my intimate investigations of a place. And whether they have been created thousands of miles away, or just a few steps outside my backdoor, it is my hope that the viewer will feel more like a local than a tourist and be transported elsewhere.”

—ANDREW BALE
“Elsewhere is an elusive term, it suggests the place where ideas converge and invention begins—somewhere over there. It also embodies a “location” and creative space for artists. It is in a place where actual and unconscious worlds merge into new opportunities for exploration. Conversely I think of an actual geographic place that offers up another reality for inventive possibilities. I grew up outside of the country and have worked at many artist residencies. This dislocation feels very familiar. It is a creative challenge navigating in unfamiliar terrain in China, where I have worked the past several years. Working elsewhere sometimes feels like home.”

—BARBARA DIDUK
“As an artist dealing primarily in landscape imagery from multiple sources and locations, the title “Elsewhere” has obvious pertinence, but the studio also plays a key role. For any artist I know, the studio provides the shelter, refuge, and center of concentration that allows for an immersion that is essential to the process. I do a very specific kind of mental traveling in my studio, that I hope ultimately becomes a shared experience with anyone viewing my work.”

“Elsewhere speaks to the transformative quality of art for both artist and viewer. For the artist, there is an optimism that the difficulties of the process will lead to surprising, evocative solutions that could not have been imagined at the outset. For the viewer, it is the desire to have an experience that can challenge and provide new insight.”

— TODD ARSENAULT
“In my studio, Elsewhere is an expression that conveys the somewhat paradoxical state of being simultaneously present and attentive, lost in remembrance, and hopeful of being transported by the work at hand.”

Education
CURATOR OF EDUCATION

Heather Flaherty joined the staff of The Trout Gallery in July as Curator of Education. She received her Ph.D. in the History of Art from The University of Michigan, and has taught on the faculty of Stony Brook University, Gettysburg College, and York College of Pennsylvania. Heather worked in the education departments of The Cloisters museum and The Metropolitan Museum of Art.

PROGRAMS

Highlights Tour
Thursdays: 12:15-12:45 p.m.
Presents a guided tour highlighting art objects on view in current exhibits. Free, no reservations needed.

Artists Talk to Artists
November 14–February 14
K–8th grade
Investigate how artists are inspired by other artists and how they converse with each other through art. Featuring works from the exhibition Elsewhere, visitors consider how and why artists borrow, quote, or reply to other artists through visual conversations. Artists included: Rembrandt, Caspar David Friedrich, William Morris, Phillip Guston, and Andy Warhol.

The Art of Protest
March 2–April 10
8th–12th grade
Examines protest art of the 1960s featured in the exhibit The Spirit of the Sixties: Art as an Agent for Change. Explores major political movements of the 1960s, and the role that art and artists played in bringing about social change.

EVENTS

Trout Study Days
December 14–15, Noon-10 p.m.
Student-centered study days featuring art therapy activities for stress-relief.

Carlisle Forum on Arts Education
Friday, January 23, 5–8 p.m.
An evening for community educators to come together, share resources, and imagine the future of arts education in Carlisle.

To schedule a program, contact Heather Flaherty, Curator of Education, at 717–245–1492 or flaherth@dickinson.edu.

Letter from the Director

Welcome to the first edition of Exhibitions, Events, Programs, a new biannual publication of The Trout Gallery. It replaces, in part, the Bulletin, which promoted upcoming events and summarized recent achievements. While the Bulletin provided a condensed view of The Trout Gallery in a single publication, the challenging demands of promoting future events and summarizing the previous year led to delays in production.

To best serve the museum’s visitors, The Trout Gallery will produce two separate publications: Exhibitions, Events, Programs and an Annual Report. The former will be published in the spring and fall, while the latter will be published in the winter. The Exhibitions, Events, Programs will follow an illustrated magazine format, while the latter will adhere to a text and statistics oriented model.

The creation of these complementary publications is part of an ongoing process to better meet the interest of the museum’s members and guests. This refinement reflects a broader commitment to ever sharpening the museum’s planning, organization, and operations.

As you turn the pages of this first issue of Exhibitions, Events, Programs, plan to visit Elsewhere, a remarkable exhibition of work by Dickinson College studio art faculty. It will be followed by The Spirit of the Sixties: Art as an Agent for Change, which is curated by senior art history majors.

If you are responsible for organizing events and tours for your class, school, or organization, please contact Heather Flaherty, Curator of Education.

Sincerely,

Phillip Earenfight
